It was very clean and my bed was very comfortable. This is a family friendly place. I'm not sure if it's a good place for kids though. It's located about 30 minutes outside of campus on i-75. Staff was very friendly and helpful. House keeping was okay. The parking was nice. I liked the place overall. Every thing was going great until all of a sudden I had to leave. The hot water shut off completely, the heat went off and now I can't get my HVAC fixed. What else could I do, or should I have done? Radiographic analysis of dimensions of second cervical vertebrae and dimensions of atlas and axis in 200 randomly selected individuals: a preliminary investigation. Measurement of the dimensions of the second cervical vertebrae (C2) is an important part of the pre-operative and post-operative procedures to be followed during surgery involving C1 and C2. In addition, it is an important part of forensic science which helps in recognition of profiles among dentition-bearing individuals. To study certain dimensions of C2 in the normal population and to find out the possibility of its use in anthropological studies. The study included 200 Indian males and females, randomly selected by a cross-sectional method. Right and left lateral view radiographs of the second cervical vertebrae in neutral position of 200 randomly selected Indian male and female (ages between 20-60 years) were taken for measurement of C2, C1, and axis (articulation between C1-axis). The mean values, standard deviation, and 95% confidence interval were computed for each variable. The mean values for right and left lateral view were: for C2, 6.4mm and 6.2mm respectively, for C1, 9.6mm and 9.5mm respectively, and for Axis, 6.1mm and 6.1mm respectively. This study found an average measurement of C2
