Snapboard is a freemium app, meaning that it comes with all the features of a paid version, while the premium variant of the program only lifts some limitations. For example, in the free version of the app, you'll only get one update per day for the info from the services and apps that you used in your dashboards. On the other hand, the so-called Plus subscription plan comes with a 1-minute refresh and unlimited custom cards that you can create from scratch using the in-app card editor. Other features are also available for a payment. For instance, you can get a personalized card from Snapboard, which would meet your demands and preferences. This FREE application allows you to create and modify your own customizable Dashboards for your company's dashboards. Business Process Management Software (BPMS) Business process management software is software that helps process owners describe, govern, monitor, and control business processes. A Process is a task that must be performed by the entity completing the task. Typically, business processes begin with task initiation. Through task initiation, the business process becomes a chain of tasks that are linked together with a process flow. A business process may be a job that involves many tasks or a series of business transactions. A Process document is a description of a business process. It is usually a textual representation of the process and typically the document will describe the activities (tasks) that will occur as well as steps that will be followed by the process owner when performing the process. A Process Flow is a graphical representation of a process that can be used as a substitute for a textual description of the process. A Process Flow represents the logical connections between steps within the process. It is typically displayed as a path or diagram of boxes containing a task name and perhaps a number to represent a particular activity. The Process Flow does not describe the steps or workflow as such, but rather how they are related. The Process Flow can be used for your own processes or can be used as a library of approved business processes that other people can refer to when they are creating or modifying their own processes. An example of a process diagram would be: Entering customer information into the CRM This is a continuous process, which means it is always processing and therefore has no start or end. It has two activities: Entering the customer name, company name, phone number etc... Updating the customer record A process chain is a process that can be broken down into smaller and smaller units to the point that it becomes a series of individual tasks. A process chain is typically created by copying a process flow and then adding steps at the end of the chain. There are many ways to display a process chain. In Process Center, the activity tree is presented in a process diagram format. This format is defined by the way individual activities are laid out and visualised (see 09e8f5149f
