What's New In SubsHub?

SubsHub is a lightweight tool for viewing and downloading subtitles. It is a simple and intuitive tool that offers you a couple of options to locate the subtitles you want. The application can be easily installed without any trouble, once it has been downloaded, open the folder where it is installed and click on the 'Install Subtitles' button on the application main window. After opening the program you will see a main screen with several search criteria available. One of these criteria is the video file that is to be selected. This file can be a video that you want to watch or it can be a video that you want to have subtitles for. You also can select a folder that contains videos that you want to have subtitles for. There are two options available to you. The first one is to use the Smart Download option and SubsHub skips from the search the files that already have subtitles. The second option is to select the language of the subtitles that you want to search for. Once the video or the folder is selected, click on the 'Find Subtitles' button. The search process will begin and the results will be displayed at the bottom of the main screen. You can choose to view the results of the searches that are available or you can view and download the subtitles.

Q: What is an "app version", and how can I submit multiple app versions in iTunes Connect? According to the iTunes Connect Guide, when you submit multiple app versions for review in iTunes Connect, you need to create a single application ID for each app version. However, I'm not sure how to do that. Do I have to create a new app ID for each app version, or can I create the same app ID for all app versions? In that case, I'm not sure how to relate the binary code to each app version. Does each binary represent a single app version? A: As far as I understand, the concept of an application ID is just a way to refer to one "single" application. It's not a way to distinguish one "version" of an application. App version (plural) is just a name you give to a particular build number in the field "Bundle Version". You're right, there's no need to create a separate application ID for each app version. One application ID is enough for every build number. For the binary, you're right, it represents a single app version. iTunes Connect should automatically link the binary to a given app version.
