shop online, you should be aware that the data you provide is used by companies that sell goods and services on the web, to select the most appropriate goods or services for you. They can also use the data they collect to contact you. In the online world, it is essential to protect your identity and your privacy. Pyladies offers a number of features to help you do this. These include: - A secure connection - Basic e-commerce security functions - A secure connection Pyladies provides an encrypted connection to any online site where you might be asked to supply your personal data. As a result, your identity is protected and your data is never transmitted in clear text. This is a simple and effective security measure that is only required to secure web sites for which you intend to make purchases, and it means that you are protected against fraud. This feature is available for all

Pyladies users. Basic e-commerce security functions Pyladies uses many of the basic security measures that are required to protect your personal data. To start with, a certificate is generated to identify your browser. When you receive the message that a secure connection is available, you will have to confirm that you are in fact using the browser you think you are. This is done by entering a code you will receive when the Pyladies program is installed. If the connection is not secure, you will not be able to complete the transaction. Once the connection is confirmed, Pyladies will transmit the basic details of your computer to the web site in question. As a result, you can avoid having to enter the same information repeatedly, and can confirm the identity of the server before completing your transaction. Pyladies will
